

Mystery Farm Home Number 36 Located East Of Lampton, House Vacant, Owner Working In Calif.

Mystery Farm Home Number 36 has been run several times in the Columbian-Progress since the Mystery Farm Home series began in the Columbian-Progress and Sunday Mirror newspapers.

To date no one has called in and said just who owned the house. This is a case of having seen a place and yet not being able to recall just where it was. Following a hunch the reporter took a loop around Lampton community, and there it was, complete with drawn venetian blinds.

The house and some fifty acres belong to R. W. Abrams. R. W. has been in California for some time, according to Salina Roberts of Lampton. R. W. married Salina's daughter, Josephine.

About the end of May, Josephine went to California to join her husband and son. Her mother says she will be back in time to gather the crop that was just about laid-by when she left.

R. W. is working in a civil service job with the Navy medics. He had farmed before going to California to work.

The son in the family is named Robert Wayne Abrams. He is a graduate of Lampton Vocational High School and attended Tuskegee one year. He, too, is working in California.
